

5010-1 Rabbit Skins—Grading Notes

We import from ten tanneries in six countries and offer more than a dozen different grades of skins to meet the various requirements of our customers. Except where indicated in the grade, we grade all skins in the U.S. to make sure that what we offer meets our grade. As far as we know, we are the only company offering this sort of grading anywhere. This page deals with our basic skins. See grading notes on other categories for more information.

The grades below start at the lowest grade and go up to the highest grade. The best sellers by volume are the trading post grade, craft grade, and gift shop grade. If all of this seems overwhelming, just give us a call and we'll help you find the right skins for your needs.

The Reject Grade rabbit skins should probably go in the garbage, but someone somewhere always seems to want these. We sort these into white and mixed natural colors. We do not do any other sorting. They often have sawdust balls (not poop) or thorns in the skins, matting, extensive hair slips, extensive tears, or some other problem, such as a stiff back or heavy stains. If you have never bought rabbit skins from us before, please do not order these—you may like the price, but I doubt you will be happy with what you get. If you return them, you pay shipping and insurance both ways. We try not to stock these but get small quantities in each shipment. They are not suitable for selling at trading posts or for making most craft projects.

The Scrappy Grade rabbit skins are very low quality skins. They are sorted into white and mixed natural colors. We do not do any other sorting. They are half or partial skins from very small rabbits. They tend to have rips and tears, holes, bald spots, and are not polished on the back. The hair quality is lousy, either flat or semi-matted. They look ratty. They are perfect for crafts where only a small piece of fur is required. Product of Egypt.

The Poubelle Grade rabbit skins may be low quality skins. They are sorted into white and mixed natural colors. We do not do any other sorting. They are small skins or torn skins. The hair quality is lousy, either flat or semi-matted. They look ratty. We sell every skin we get and have trouble keeping supplies in stock. They are perfect for trading posts or uses where only a piece of fur is required. If you want something nice, don't buy "junk." Maybe they will work for you, maybe not. If you return these, return the entire lot if you want to buy rabbits from us again. We do not allow any upgrading or picking. We have had very few returns for this item. A few customers will not re-order the cheap skins, but most happily join a wait list. Egypt.

The Clipper Grade white or mixed natural color rabbits have acceptable hair quality and are NOT matted, but may have serious cosmetic problems—generally extensive yellowing, bluish tint, other discoloration, or various size bald spots. They are ideal for testing dog hair and human hair clippers.

The Grade 5 are typically smaller than average, possibly misshapen, and sometimes have cosmetic defects. Most are bunny rabbit brown, bunny rabbit gray, and natural black. They are soft and supple. They are Spanish farmed rabbits tanned in Morocco. If you buy as an unsorted mix, expected about 10% rejects, 30% cut-ups, 30% trading post, and 30% craft grade. They are great value for the money for what they are.

Cut-Up Grade skins are lower-quality skins that have good fur, but have major cosmetic defects. For example, these skins can be small, misshapen, have extensive tears, holes or bald spots in the middle of the skin, or have patches of bad hair on them. They are unsuitable for resale as novelty skins, but are ideal for cutting up into smaller pieces for craft projects. We use this grade of skin to make many of our rabbit fur bags and for trim on crafts. These are good value for the money if you need good fur and can work around the problems.

The Trading Post skins are generally full skins with areas of weak or thin hair coverage or minor defects. They are suitable for selling to customers who just want a rabbit skin for whatever reason and do not know or care about the quality of the hair. They are also suitable for some craft projects, especially ones requiring small pieces. The white skins are chrome tanned and tend to have a bluish or yellowish cast to them. The sandy white are not what most people think of as one of the "mixed natural colors," and are not pure white. They look like white skins with sawdust sprinkled on them. The trading post grade skins are what is most commonly available in the market. They may work for you, but proceed with caution in the beginning. We offer these as an unsorted run only. If this grade is unsuitable for your purposes, all the skins must be returned for credit—not just what you want to grade out. These are Spanish grade 4 skins that we have seen being re-sold as a prime, grade A skins. We are fussier than others about grades.

The Craft Grade skins can be misshapen, smaller than normal, or have some other minor defects, such as small tears, lower quality fur, or minor bald spots on the side. They may be missing a quarter panel at times. These are generally okay for re-sale or for use in making crafts; they are just not perfect skins. This grade is one of our most popular. The Craft Low Grade may have a small hair slip (bald spot) or hole in the center of the skin.

The Gift Shop Grade skins are higher quality than the craft grade skins, but do not have the consistent hair length and quality found on the better grade skins. They have good presentation. These are sold in large quantities in museum gift shops and trading posts, as well as for use in craft projects.

The Better Grade skins are full-size skins suitable for sale in galleries, more discriminating gift shops and trading posts, or for craft projects that require very nice hair quality. These skins have a more consistent hair length and few, if any, imperfections.

The Garment Grade skins are full-size skins suitable for sale in galleries, more discriminating gift shops and trading posts, or for craft projects that require very nice hair quality. These skins have a more consistent hair length and few, if any, imperfections. They typically have 20% denser hair than the better grade skins and are the best quality that Spain has to offer. The Spanish Garment Grade skins are lighter weight skins ideally suited to the fashion industry. They are not heavy, female skins suited for bulky Eskimo parka trim or mukluk trim. Many of these skins go to the fashion trade in Spain, Italy, France, Germany, South Korea, China, and Taiwan. They are usually made into plates, but we have asked our associate to save small quantities for us for our customers who require very high quality skins for their work but do not want to buy whole plates. The bleached white skins are a brilliant white.

The Czech Female #1/2 Grade skins are the best rabbit skins we have seen anywhere in the world. They are typically 1.5 to 3 times the size of a regular rabbit and are hand sorted for quality. The man we buy these from grades each skin one by one. The quality shows. The backs of the skins are white and super soft. The hair is dense. We sell thousands into the Arctic for use on parkas and mitts. These are the best of the best anywhere.

The Czech Female #3 Grade skins are ideal for most craft projects that require smaller pieces of fur. There can be some matting, holes, or bald spots. They are perfect for making cat and dog toys.

(Oryctolagus cuniculus, ranch).

The country of origin varies with each shipment and is indicated on the website.

For more information on rabbits, such as closeouts and special deals, heavier rabbits available in limited supply, better pictures, grading videos, details on sizes, weights, and grades, uses for rabbit skins, and other topics, please visit our retail website at <http://www.chichesterinc.com/rabbitskins.htm> or feel free to call us at 1.800.206.6544. We will do our best to help you choose the best grade for your needs.

These are skins from domesticated rabbits are a by-product of the food industry. The Spanish and Czech rabbits are ethically killed in European Union slaughterhouses that meet very strict regulations. The animals are not killed just for their hides. Domestic rabbits are not endangered. They were so common in Spain that the country derives its name from them. Spain means the country where rabbits are everywhere. (Oryctolagus cuniculus, ranch).

We do not permit customers to high grade shipments and return what they do not like. We grade carefully and offer the skins as a run according to the grade. If you are not happy with the grade, please return all of the skins. If you want to keep just what you like, we will not be upset, but will never offer skins to you again. We have very few returns. Please do not hesitate to call us if you have questions about which grade to buy for a specific project. We will do our best to guide you to the right grade.

5010-3 Czech Female Rabbit Skins

CZECH HEAVY RABBIT SKINS

The #1/#2 skins are the nicest rabbit skins we have ever seen. Our supplier hand-picks each skin. He sorts tens of thousands of skins and only keeps the best 5% to 20% depending upon the run and time of the year. These are the best of the best. They are soft-tanned, big, and very heavily furred. They are ideal for resale or for craft projects requiring excellent material. The fur is denser and the skin is typically a bit heavier than on regular Spanish fryer rabbits. These are perfect for trim on parkas, mukluks, and gauntlets. They also make exceptionally nice massage mitts and lovely blankets.

Prices have not fallen as volumes to choose from have almost disappeared after the collapse of the Russian economy and invasion of Ukraine. This has become a very difficult grade to find in any quantity.

The #2/3 skins are perfect for craft projects requiring heavier fur, such as trim on parkas, mukluks, gauntlets, fur bags, and cat and dog toys. They are soft and supple with good hair. There are typically minor cosmetic problems such as a hole, tear, or hair slip (bald spot) somewhere on the skin. They are perfect for cutting up.

The #3 skins are good for craft projects requiring smaller pieces, such as cat and dog toys that need heavier fur or trim on other crafts. There is some cosmetic problem such as a hole, bald spot, matted area, or part of the skin is missing. They are good value for the money.

The #4 skins consist of various grades. Each lot will include different combinations of reject, cut-up, and trading post grade skins. Do not buy this grade if you want a specific quality of skin as this is a mix of grades. They come in varying sizes, and in Natural and White. (Oryctolagus cuniculus, ranch).

5010-4 Heavy & Female Rabbit Skins

HEAVY LOW-GRADE RABBIT SKINS

Product of the Czech Republic

Tanned in Spain

The heavy low grade skins are large breeder rabbits with heavy fur. We buy these as lower grade skins and then sort accordingly. The A grade skins are generally whole skins without major imperfections. The B grade skins are more craft quality. The C grade skins are yellowed or have extensive problems. We have natural colors in grades A, B, and C. We have white in grade C at this time. (Oryctolagus cuniculus, ranch).

SPANISH BREEDER RABBITS

The Spanish like to eat young, succulent rabbits. Consequently, many of the rabbits from Spain are smaller than the ones from central and eastern Europe. The Breeder rabbits, however, are about 50% to 100% bigger than regular rabbits from Spain and the hair tends to be heavier than that of the typical Spanish rabbit, but not as heavy as on rabbits from Hungary or the Czech Republic. The breeder rabbits are good value for the money and are nicely tanned. The #1/#2 rabbits are good quality skins with few, if any, imperfections. The #3 skins have minor problems (holes, rips, tears, or bald spots) and are ideal for craft projects. (Oryctolagus cuniculus, ranch).

5010-5 Rex Rabbit & Hare Skins

NATURAL COLOR REX RABBIT SKINS

Rex rabbits are the “King” of the rabbit selection. The First Grade skins have the softest, silkiest, densest fur of our rabbit skins line. These top-of-the-line rabbit skins are soft-tanned, big, and very heavily furred. The feel of these luxurious pelts are these closest you can get to a sheared beaver skin, but at a fraction of the cost!

These rex rabbit skins average 12" to 16" long and 11" to 14" wide. The hair is about 0.75" long.

Our Grade AA skins are the biggest and the silkiest, while the rest is graded by size. Comparing grades from AA to C, the AA skins are the best in terms of size and softness. As you go down the scale, the skins get smaller.

The approximate sizes are follows:

Size AA: 186 sq. inches (1,200 sq. cm.) per skin

Size A: 155 sq. inches (1,000 sq. cm.) per skin

Size B: 139 sq. inches (900 sq. cm.) per skin

Size C: 124 sq. inches (800 sq. cm.) per skin

(Oryctolagus cuniculus, ranch).

SNOWSHOE HARE SKINS

We get a limited number of tanned snowshoe hare skins each year. These are very nicely tanned in China. Snowshoe hare are different from domesticated rabbit: the skin is thinner and the hair is wilder with longer guard hairs. These hare are in the winter phase and tend to be whitish. A U.S. Fish & Wildlife permit is required for export.

Product of Siberia in Russia, Tanned in China

The uncased Arctic hare skins may have small nicks, holes, tears, or cuts on the hide side that typically cannot be seen from the hair side. These imperfections can be sewn up—we just don't have time for this. They are good for craft projects. (Lepus timidus, wild; Lepus americanus, wild).
