AUSTRALIAN SHEEP SKINS

The Australian Sheepskins are soft and supple. The finish and quality of these are superior to the Argentine skins, but not as nice as the Hungarian—the best we have seen to date. They average 36" to 42" long and 22" to 29" wide. These skins are a by-product of the food industry. See our website for colors. (Ovis aries, ranch).

RACKA SHEEP SKINS

Racka (pronounced Rass-Ka) sheepskins come from a special breed of Hungarian sheep. Racka sheep look like angora goats with unusual spiral-shaped horns. Although they look like angora goats, their wool is more sheep-like and softer.

Their wool is long and this sheep appears in two general types: cream color wool with light brown face and legs, and an all black variation. We sort our sheepskins into five colors: creamy white, black, brown, gray, and multicolor. There is some variation within each color. The animals are raised for food and are not killed just for their skins. Each skin is shown on our website in a gallery so you can pick the exact one you desire. Limited supply. (Ovis aries, ranch).
